March 13th
Art Guffaw

Join Mr. Art Guffaw, a house painter who is afraid of color and cannot draw a straight line becomes a real artist, in a mysterious artist's studio where the easel speaks, drawings come alive and portraits dance. With puppetry, juggling, giant soap bubbles and at least 99 art jokes, Art Guffaw brings to life an astonishing circus of fine art.

The Night the Moon Ate My Room!

WHAT? How could the moon eat somebody's room? A boy looks out his bedroom window late one starry night and thinks he sees the moon getting closer and closer to him... and he's right! The moon enters the room, and shares with the boy magical stories that, through the boy's eyes and ears, reveal the wisdom and the universal gifts of sharing, community, leadership, and... the art of dreaming. Take this magical journey with Julliard actor and violinist Jesse Wilson as he performs selected stories.

May 8th The Puppet Lady

Patti Smithsonian, a performer, designer, and writer for puppet theater, has performed her original work in the US, Mexico, Europe and Canada. Her performances combine puppets, masks, optical effects, dance, and acting. Patti has been given the UNIMA International Award for Excellence in Puppet Theatre, the Colorado Art Educator of the Year Award, and the Colorado Springs Living Treasure Award, among others. She has a B.A. in Performing Arts from the State University of New York at Brockport. Patti's programs focus on engaging creativity, joy and spontaneous imagination.
